Abstract

Stephen Schnorf, Illinois Statecraft, ISG-A-L-2010-018

Biographical Information Overview of Interview: Stephen Schnorf was born on November 18, 1944 in Charleston, Illinois. His family had deep roots in Coles and Cumberland Counties, arriving in the area shortly before the Civil War. Steve grew up in Charleston, on the southwest side of town, and was educated at Eastern Illinois University's lab school and Eastern Illinois University. His younger brother was a friend and classmate of Jim Edgar's, although Steve did not know Edgar especially well at this point. He majored in history at Eastern and graduated in 1966. After working as a teacher for several years, Steve returned to graduate school, earning his MS in Education in 1973. That was also the year he married Jane Elmore. Following a series of jobs with non-profits focusing on mental health, and work on all of Edgar's campaigns for state representative, Steve joined Secretary of State Edgar's office in 1981 as the director of the senior citizens division.

Steve worked with Edgar for the next seventeen years. He served as then-Secretary Edgar's director of Drivers services from 1983 to 1991. After winning the 1990 gubernatorial race, Edgar named Schnorf director of CMS. Schnorf became Edgar's policy director in 1994 and served in this role until he was named Budget Director in 1997. He continued in this position through Gov. George Ryan's administration.
